CRAVEN COUNTY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT LAUNCHES NEW WEBSITE

Craven County Economic Development Director, Timothy S. Downs, launched a new website today specifically designed to help attract businesses to Craven County. The new site is cravenbusiness.com and it features a link to the countywide database of sites currently available, an interactive map of the county, and numerous resources that business owners can use to support their enterprises.

“This new website is a critically important tool in our effort to help build business in Craven County,” said Downs. “In many case, the website will be our first contact with those who are unfamiliar with Craven County and looking for a place to locate a business.”

The site also features information on the key employers within the county, transportation options, and a glimpse of why people choose to live in Craven County. Downs noted, “We developed this site to support our local entrepreneurs as well as provide an opportunity for people around the world to get to know the value of doing business in Craven County.”
